OUR GRAND JURIES.

Preaching economy and practicing an entirely different doctrine, the uselessness of the grand jury system is again brought before the attention of the taxpayers by the verdict returned last night in the arson case. The present grand jury has attempted to win the plaudits of the people by recommending an economic administration for every official in the county and it has been due to the suggestions proffered that men have been dropped from the county payroll. Yet the honorable board will convene day after day, draw the munificent sum of three dollars per diem, and talk of the economic wonders they have accomplished. Occasionally an indictment will be returned just to show the dear unsuspecting public that actual work is being accomplished. The indictment is found only after the complaining parties have been granted an audience. The defendant in the matter has no say at all in the proceedings and must bear all the indignities placed upon him until he is brought to trial like a common criminal, and then he is usually acquitted. The grand jury is used as a cat's paw in the majority of the cases.

But to preach economy and practice extravagance is something that is beyond the conception of the human mind. Take the Mick arson case, for instance. This happened just in the midst of the great economical regime. The members of the grand jury were of the opinion that the local authorities were not fit to cope with the situation, so three detectives, of the real gum shoe variety, were employed from San Francisco. The only result obtained from the labors of the sleuths was a bill, and this could be expected.

The sooner the grand jury system is abolished, the better off the state of Nevada will be.

HE BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING.

Every once in a while some college professor or high school principal, who is not receiving sufficient public notice to suit him, makes a ruling which he knows will arouse the antagonism of his pupils. This causes him to be talked about, and brings him prominently before the public. The reporters interview him, and he is given a chance to air his opinions. The more resistance his dictum encounters, and the bigger rampus it creates, the better he seems to like it. The head pedagogue of the high school at Stockton, California, is the latest one to use this means of getting his name up in the world. Some of his girl pupils, with the usual feminine pride in their personal appearance, have taken to wearing their hair done up in a style which does not meet with his approval, to wit: They wore false curls. This was too good an opportunity for the boss teacher, and he issued a manifesto that the co-eds must shed their false hair, so to speak. It is not recorded that he prescribed any particular style in which they must wear their hair, whether rats or switches are permissible, and so forth. The young ladies took his ruling as an infringement of their rights and refused to obey. Their hair was their own, even to the false curls, which presumably were paid for, and they proposed to wear it, regardless of the sensitive professor's feelings. This gave him his opportunity. For refusing to change her style, one young lady, daughter of a prominent citizen, was sent home, there to meditate in sackcloth and ashes until she could make up her mind to conform to the rules for arranging her silken locks laid down by the learned educator. But she didn't don the sackcloth, and no especial demand for ashes has been felt in the market. She did meditate, however, and so also did the balance of the girls of the class, and it was resolved by the whole bevy that they would not only wear all the false curls they felt like, but every girl who could get one would appear in hobble skirts, so there! The professor's apparent object was attained. He has started a first-class row and started the newspapers talking. But if experience with lovely woman and her ways counts for anything, it is given as the opinion of a gray-haired man that those girls will get away with the decision, and the stubborn professor will wish he had never seen a false curl before they get through with him.

GOLD DISCOVERY NEAR RAWHIDE CAUSES STAMPEDE

News of a rich gold strike has reached Rawhide and a number of our people have joined in the rush to the new field. The camp is situated about 20 miles northeast of Rawhide and 10 miles from Schurz. The Rawhide Press-Times is informed that the strike is a rich one and the promise of another old-time Nevada stampede is particularly bright. Jed Terrell, Craig Catterson, George McKean, Harry Davis and several others from Rawhide are on the ground floor with locations. It is reported that a townsite has been laid out and that many claims have been staked.

The Press-Times is informed that there is one ledge that is claimed to be ten feet wide, and that assays taken from the surface croppings have run as high as $86 per ton. The placers in the gulches are said to be even richer than this.

"Red" Gross, Frank Channing, Newt Schaffer and others left Rawhide in the middle of last night in an auto for the scene of the new strike. Others are now preparing to go and every indication points to another stampede. Everybody in the camp is talking of the new find, and within the next few days something more definite regarding the district will be known. The reports will be substantiated, so the insiders say.—Rawhide Press-Times.

NEVADA INDIAN APPROPRIATION PASSED

The Nevada Indian appropriation has passed the house of representatives and it is expected to also go through the senate. The bill was drawn by Congressman George A. Bartlett. It provides:

"For the support and civilizing of the Indians of the Shoshone agency, including pay of the employees, $8,000.

"For support and education of 300 pupils at the Indian school at Carson City, and for pay of superintendent, $50,000; for general repairs and improvements, $6,000; in all, $56,100.

"For support and civilizing of other Indians in the state of Nevada, $6,500; for pay of employees, including physician, at the Walker River reservation, $4,000; in all, $10,500; total, $74,600."

TOIYABE NATIONAL FOREST ENLARGED

From the Toiyabe national forest in Nevada, the president by proclamation has eliminated 65,755 acres as being chiefly valuable for agriculture, and has added to the forest 311,793 acres. The Gillis mountain division of the Mono forest has been transferred to the Toiyabe forest.

The president has also eliminated from the Chelan forest, in Washington, 17,611 acres.

These changes make the total to date as follows:

Eliminations, 4,288,367 acres and additions 2,069,794 acres, a loss to the forests of 2,218,573 acres.

SECRETARY ANSWERS PROTEST OF CHINESE

Secretary Nagel has answered the protest of the Chinese consul at San Francisco in regard to the examination of Chinese aliens for filarissas at Angel Island, by justifying Dr. M. W. Glover in the course he had pursued as dictated "by common sense and good judgment."

The protest, which had been sent to Washington, was that Chinese immigrants were treated in a manner to cause humiliation at the station here, when their ears were lanced at midnight to determine from the blood whether they were victims of filarissas. It was also charged that there was discrimination in favor of other races in the practices at Angel Island. The secretary's findings are that there has been no discrimination; that the examinations of the Chinese were not humiliating, and furthermore, that those examined should consider that they were receiving a benefit, as they were informed of their diseases.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE AUTHORITY ON CIVIL LAW

Justice Edward Douglass White was born in the parish of La Fourche, La., in November, 1845. His parents were Catholics and he himself professes that faith. His education was in Catholic institutions. In his early youth he attended school at Mount St. Marys, near Emmetsburg, Md. Later he entered the Jesuit college in New Orleans and finally he went to Georgetown college, Washington, D. C.

Justice Ward served in the confederate army in the civil war; practiced law in Louisiana, and became a sugar planter on his low lands. His ability and high character were recognized by the people in repeated commissions as a public official.

In 1873 he was elected a senator in the Louisiana legislature. Four years later he was appointed justice of the supreme court of the state, and served until the new constitution went into effect in 1879, making all offices in the state vacant.

In 1891 Mr White became a national figure. A senatorial contest was waged in Louisiana. Mr. White entered the race. He had managed the campaign of Governor Nichols for re-election and had been prominent in the reform element of his state. He had fought vigorously for the anti-lottery movement. The legislature finally chose him to succeed Senator Eustace.

Senator White was in the senate three years before he was elevated to the supreme bench in 1894 by President Cleveland. In that period he distinguished himself on two occasions. One in the debate on the anti-option bill when Senator White made a profound legal argument against the constitutionality of the measure. Another occasion was the struggle over the repeal of the Sherman act when he advocated the views President Cleveland was known to entertain on the subject. His nomination to the bench ended a memorable contest in the senate.

Justice White's knowledge of the civil law is generally regarded as the most profound of any man who ever sat on the supreme bench. Of late years he has developed a speciality for questions of interstate commerce.

Although a confederate soldier and a democrat, he is said to hold probably the most clearly marked ideas of federalism of any justice. He was with the government in all the so-called insular cases, involving the Philippines and other island possessions. He rendered a minority opinion against the government's contentions in the Northern Securities case and also was with the minority in voting to sustain the income tax.

THE BACHELOR AND THE LADY BARBERS AT BUTLER

The program of the Butler theater for today is as follows: "The Ship's Husband" is a roaring comedy. "The Bachelor and the Lady Barbers" lends additional laughter to the program. "For a woman's Honor" is a Kalem feature which deals with a story of old Virginia in the period before the revolutionary war. The hero maintains his silence regarding the innocent parties' whereabouts on a particular night, even to the shadow of the gallows. But finally the girl tells and he is exonerated, and the lovers are permitted to marry. "The Printy Trio, in addition to the regular sketches put on last evening, will perform an additional dance. Tomorrow evening they will be seen in an entire change of program.

MAIL NIGHT A SOCIAL EVENT AT WONDER

Life in a mining camp has its interesting as well as its seamy side, and each place has its own peculiarities. Wonder's principal peculiarity is the social and soliable disposition of its residents. This pleasant feature is beautifully brought out every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening, on the arrival of the mail. On these evenings the postoffice has become the recognized meeting place for all. The stage is supposed to arrive at 6:30 on these evenings, and at about ten minutes past the hour the gathering of the clans begins. During the time of waiting a regular social function is held. Strangers are introduced to each other, the ladies foregather in groups and discuss the latest styles, the men stand around in groups and talk mines, politics and religion, and the children amuse themselves as only children can. It is here that the latest dance is talked over, and arrangements made for the next one. Suddenly a change comes over the scene. The mud-wagon is heard in the darkness, and all hands, spurred by curiosity, strain their ears and crane their necks, to ascertain if there are any passengers aboard. The mail bags are hustled into the sacred precincts behind the lock-boxes, and every face assumes an expectant look. Boxes are opened and closed, letters opened and read, and, as soon as the general delivery windows are opened, the meeting adjourns without form, to meet again next mail night.
